

Feast at the Bishop's Home : Dinner for Eight

*They had a cook with them who stood alone for boiling chicken with a marrow-bone.
sharp flavouring powder and a spice for savour, he could distinguish London ale by flavour,
and he could roast and boil and seethe and fry.
make good thick soup and bake a tasty pie... as for blancmange, he made it with the best.*

So wrote Chaucer long ago of a cook whose work was much appreciated. Dining together with friends and family remains one of life's greatest gifts. However, our frenzied pace often steals this simple pleasure from us. Bishop Parsley and Becky invite you and 7 of your friends or family to their Birmingham home for a meal finely prepared and served by chef Rob Morpeth and served by members of our diocesan staff. Chef Morpeth and Maitre de Parsley and their ladies will guide your party through seven courses with wine to match.
